HE FIXED IT.

During the recent political campaign former Representative Driggs of Brooklyn addressed an Italian campaign club, at default of a knowledge of Italian, Mr. Driggs phrased his remarks in simple language, spoken slowly, and paused slightly at the end of each argument. To his surprise, no less than his pleasure, his Italian listeners gave the closest attention, and applauded at the proper places, shouting "Viva!" and "Bravo!" repeatedly. At the conclusion of his speech Mr. Driggs retired to the rear of the platform, and seating himself by the side of the chairman whispered to him that he was delighted with his reception and said he had spoken to no more no intelligent audience in his life. The one thing that surprised him was the ready applause.

"Ha-ha!" replied the chairman, drawing himself up and striking himself on the chest proudly. "Me fix alla that. Me hol' up once a nga, evera man say a 'Hurra'! Me hol' up twice a nga, evera man say a 'Viva'! Me hol' up three a nga, evera man say a 'Bravo'! Me hol' up whole a hand, evera man say a 'Hill'! I like hell. Me fix alla that. —New York Times.

Masons Among Whalers.

The lodges of Freemasonry established in Honolulu have ever been appreciated by the stranger-brother, who has, either from chance or during his travels around the world, touched at these shores. But by none perhaps have they been more appreciated than by the officers of the great whaling fleet visiting Honolulu upon their return from the northern cause in the late autumn months of the fifties and early sixties. Here they discharged their stores of oil and bone for transshipment to the Atlantic ports of the United States and refitted for their midwinter trip to the southward, returning in the spring months to again refit for the Arctic and Okhotsk Sea.

This was for some years a regular occurrence and whenever the semaphore above the old postoffice at the head of Kaahumanu street, swung its arms to No. 17 (whaleship off Koko Head), we knew that it meant a few more of the brethren returning to the welcome shelter of our lodge and the names and faces of the masters and mates of this fleet were as a household word and greeting until 1865, the Confederate cruiser Shenandoah swept the northern seas and annihilated the fleet that carried only harpoons for self-defense, and sent the impoverished crews, crowded upon the few vessels that they released for the purpose of carrying them to this port.

In those days there was no Royal Hawaiian or Moana Hotel. In fact there was no hotel worthy of the name unless it might be the neat and well-cared for "Sailors' Home," at the corner of Merchant and Bethel streets, which sheltered many of the whaler-men's officers and their wives during the season. A few of the foreign residents had also accommodation for boarders and lodgers. But for amusement and recreation there was little save the occasional advent of some theatrical or minstrel troupe, who, as a rule, were eventually stranded here, and it being "too deep to wade," were helped back by generous contributions in the way of prepaid passages to the Mainland. This was considered the proper method of aiding these professional waiters, for they generally conformed to such a love for Honolulu and its surroundings that a money contribution tended to lengthen their stay as long as it lasted.

If the spirits of departed actors and actresses could haunt the scenes of their temporary triumphs, we might find ourselves surrounded in the small hours of the night by the "spooks" of those who, many years ago, delighted in the isolated population, packed in the sweltering night in the ill-ventilated old Derby Theater, which occupied the very spot where our Temple now stands.

Save for this occasional refreshment there was only the barroom of the public dance house to resort to. Under these circumstances our brethren from the sea hailed the advent of lodge night.

Upon arrival in port they were prompt to report at the lodge room, where they attended assiduously, joining earnestly in our labors and ever genial in our hours of refreshment, until duty called them forth again to their operative labor upon the nightly deep.

Among the most valued treasures of Hawaiian Lodge today—a treasure upon which the casual visitor may gaze with but passing interest, is a framed collection of daguerreotypes and amulets, representing many of our former stalwart brethren, whose calling led them to brave the dangers of the frozen north year after year in their hunt after the great leviathan. Men injured to hardship in every form. Men who had fearlessly faced privation and possible death, time and again, in pursuit of their venturesome calling. Men, who in the pride of their fraternal right, carried the banner with the square and compass to the frozen Arctic seas, and at times they have told how, amid hardship and danger, they have been gladdened and heartened by the blue flag of Masonry, with its well known symbol, has flown swiftly to the mission truck in recognition and assurance to the ship of a brother in distress; in assurance that those who flew the flag; would come to their aid, risking even life itself in the attempt for their rescue.

These were the men who knew truly the meaning of fraternal love. These were the men, rough and bluff, perhaps, under the stern discipline of a life spent largely away from the haunts of civilization, but under whose weather beaten exterior carried hearts that beat as tenderly as any loving woman's, when calamity, distress and sickness or sorrow appealed to them for relief. These were the brethren who were ever welcome within our portals and these also are the brethren who, when disaster overtook them, knew that they were sure of relief and refuge in this outpost of our order.

Very many of these men and brethren have vanished from the scene and we have little left of them save these pictures and a fading remembrance. In a few years more most of the names will have passed from recollection.

Yet they are not quite all gone, for our lodge roll we still carry the names of two of those hale, hearty sailor brethren of the olden time who claim Honolulu as their home. The lives of either of them would make a book teeming with adventure that would be more wonderful to read than many a published story of sea fiction. I refer to Brothers Benjamin Whitney and Alfred Newton Tripp.

We are glad to have them with us upon this anniversary and we trust to hold them with us long, for the sake of old long ago.

Alliott Hale Ceremony.
The corner stone of the new government building, "Alliott Hale," now known as the Judiciary building, was laid in the presence of His Majesty, Kamehameha V., on Monday, February 19, 1872. In M. A. J. Cartwright officiated, acting as the deputy of the Grand Master and the various offices of the Acting Grand Lodge were filled by Past Masters of the two lodges respectively—Jno. O. Dominis, P. C. Jones and H. A. P. Carter, of Lodge Le Progres de l'Océanie, and Wm. P. Allen, John A. Hassinger, Rev. G. B. Whipple and C. S. Bartow, of Hawaiian Lodge.

Lodge on Maui.

On July 19, 1872, a dispensation was granted by Grand Master L. E. Pratt to organize Maui Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons at Wailuku, the following brethren being named in the petition: Rev. Geo. B. Whipple, W. M.; Daniel P. Sanford, S. W.; George Miller, J. W.; Eugene Hat, treasurer; E. W. Tallant, secretary; M. E. Newton, S. D.; C. Farden, J. D.; Samuel E. Ford, Tyler; also James Anderson and Wesley Burnham.

On October 18, 1872, this lodge received its charter and was designated as Number 223 on the Grand Lodge roll.

The membership of Maui Lodge was somewhat scattered, many of the brethren coming from a distance—some from twenty miles or more, to attend the meetings, necessitating their absence over night from their homes on distant plantations and ranches.

After working in harmony for several years, some of the brethren removed from the island and, it being difficult to obtain the necessary officers from the scattered remaining membership, it was respectfully voted to surrender its charter.

The first official visit from a Grand Master to Hawaiian Lodge was in 1878, when Grand Master John Mills Brown came to our shores. He was received with all the honors due his rank; made a careful examination of all matters pertaining to the convention and work of the lodge and paid the brethren some very pleasant compliments and congratulations upon their devotion to the interests of the order and the prospects of soon having a building of our own.

First Masonic Hall.
On Saturday, January 4, 1879, the corner stone of our first Masonic hall at the corner of Fort and Queen street was laid. Past Master A. J. Cartwright, our senior past master, was authorized by special dispensation to represent our Grand Master in conducting the ceremonies, in which he was assisted by past masters of Hawaiian Lodge in the subordinate offices. His Majesty, Kalkaua, was present at these ceremonies, wearing his jewel as a past master of Lodge Le Progres de l'Océanie, and accompanied by Queen Kapiolani and the brethren present and attended by all the Cabinet Ministers.

The members of the two lodges joined in procession, escorting the acting Grand Lodge. The orator of the occasion was Past Master Albert Francis Judd.

The lodge membership at this date numbered 78, but of those who were upon the original lodge roll in 1872, but one survived—the acting Grand Master, who then officiated.

The dedication of that hall on Tuesday evening, September 30, 1879, was without doubt the first Masonic dedication ceremony witnessed in these islands, it being the first building erected for Masonic purposes, and was owned solely by Hawaiian Lodge.

The brethren convened for the last time in the old lodge room in the Marine Block at 7:30 p. m., where they were joined by the members of Lodge Le Progres de l'Océanie and numerous visiting brethren and marched in procession to the new hall, escorted by the acting Grand Lodge, which consisted as follows: A. J. Cartwright, G. M.; Wm. F. Allen, D. G. M.; C. S. Bartow, S. G. W.; John A. Hassinger, J. G. W.; A. F. Judd, G. O. A choir of young Hawaiians, under Bro. Rev. Alexander Mackintosh, rendered the appropriate anthems and hymns, and P. M. A. F. Judd delivered the oration.

Palace Corner Stone Laid.
The corner stone of the Palace was laid on Wednesday, December 31, 1879, which, being the birthday of Queen Kapiolani, was selected by His Majesty, Kalkaua, as a fitting day for the ceremonies.

All the local military and civil bodies took part in the grand procession. The representatives of foreign powers, officials of vessels of war in port, and Government officials, with numerous ladies, assembled under the spacious tent which was erected for the occasion. His Majesty and Governor Dole were the insignia of the thirty-third degree of Masonry, and the ceremonies began at the hour of high tide.

The following past masters officiated: David Dayton, of Lodge Le Progres, D. G. M.; Wm. B. Wright, of Lodge Le Progres, D. G. M.; Wm. P. Allen, of Hawaiian Lodge, J. G. W.; John A. Hassinger, of Hawaiian Lodge, J. G. W.; D. H. Ford, of Hawaiian Lodge, G. Sec.; Rev. Alexander Mackintosh, W. M.; of Hawaiian Lodge, G. Chaplain; and Lewis Way, of Hawaiian Lodge, G. Architect.

An address in English by Chief Justice Harris was, in his absence, delivered by Associate Justice McCully. This was followed by a historical address in Hawaiian by Bro. John M. Kapiena, of Lodge Le Progres, and Brother P. M. the Hon. A. Fornander, of Hawaiian Lodge, delivered the Masonic oration.

At the conclusion of the oration, P. M. John A. Hassinger, of Hawaiian Lodge, advanced to the corner stone and by request of His Majesty presented to Lodge Le Progres de l'Océanie, through its master, James S. Lemon, the working tools of massive silver which had been wrought expressly for use upon this occasion.

First Public Installation.
The first public installation of lodge officers of which we have record was held at the hall of Hawaiian Lodge, December 27, 1880.

P. M. John A. Hassinger was the installing officer, assisted by P. M. Wm. F. Allen. The hall was well filled with guests, of whom about sixty were ladies.

At the close of the installation ceremonies Bro. P. M. Allen called up Bro. Frederick August Schaefer, who after thirteen years of faithful service as treasurer of the lodge, had been again elected to that responsible office and just installed for the fifteenth time, and with a few appropriate remarks unveiled and presented to him in the name of the lodge a handsome black marble drawing room clock.

After this pleasant incident, the chairs were speedily removed and the spacious lodge room transformed into a ball room. Prof. Borger and his band furnished music until early dawn.

In 1887 we were honored by a second time honored by an official visit from a Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of California. This was Grand Master Edmund C. Atkinson, who was accompanied by a large delegation of the grand officers. The Grand Master was greatly interested in our work, conferring degrees and otherwise rendering us valuable assistance.

The grand officers were liberally entertained during their visit, enjoying, among other pleasures, a grand feast

Present Masonic Temple.

After some years of occupancy of our hall at the corner of Fort and Queen streets, the members of our lodge began to realize the fact that the lodge location was not as desirable as could be wished. In a decade of years the city had spread east, west and north, leaving our hall—after the rush of business hours had ceased, in the silent, deserted lower end of the town, and the conviction was forced upon the brethren that a change should be made for the better. So when a fair offer was made for our building, a more central and convenient location was sought and finally the choice was made of this spot, and on Tuesday, December 27, 1892, the corner stone of our present Masonic Temple was laid.

P. M. Wm. F. Allen, the senior past master of the lodge, representing the Grand Master, conducted the ceremonies in the presence of Her Majesty, Queen Liliuokalani, with past masters of Hawaiian Lodge filling the stations of the principal grand officers.

Bro. Paul Neumann delivered an impressive oration upon this occasion. To the contents of the copper tablet buried under this stone, we added those from the stone under our first building, which were cut out from the foundation stone for this purpose, a few days previously.

On the evening of Monday, November 27, 1892, our temple was solemnly dedicated to Masonry. The members of Hawaiian Lodge again met for a last time in a hall where for fourteen years it had been the scene of frequent gatherings in the interests of our order, and where, when its altar had been placed and guarded by its "Three Great Lights," it had been fondly hoped that they would so remain for generations to come.

The lodge was here joined by the brethren of Lodge Le Progres de l'Océanie and the two lodges formed an escort to the Grand Lodge in the procession to the new temple. Seats were reserved for the wives and children of Brother Masons and a choir from the Central Union and Anglican churches rendered the appropriate anthems for the service under the direction of Wray Taylor, organist.

The following past masters officiated: Wm. F. Allen, Grand Master; Theo. C. Porter, D. G. M.; John Phillips, S. G. W.; Jas. M. Monsarrat, J. G. W.; Rev. Alexander Mackintosh, G. Chaplain; and John A. Hassinger was the orator of the occasion.

Lodge Pacific Formed.

In 1893 a third Masonic lodge came into existence in Honolulu. A dispensation was granted by the District Grand Lodge of Queensland, under the Grand Lodge of Scotland, and bearing date January 4 of that year, authorizing the establishment of Pacific Lodge, No. 822, under that jurisdiction. The original list of officers was as follows: Henry E. Cooper, R. W. Master; Jas. A. King, Deputy Master; C. B. Ripley, Substituted Master; John Phillips, S. W.; F. B. Auerbach, J. W.; C. L. Dodge, S. D.; Edwin Hughes, J. D.; E. D. Tenney, Treasurer; H. H. Williams, Secretary; R. F. Lange, Chaplain. Its regular charter was issued under date of August 1st of the same year.

Pacific Lodge has grown and prospered well and in its seventh year has a membership of 140.

Kilauea Lodge.
In the latter part of 1896 Freemasonry sprang into active life in Hilo. On the evening of December 3d of that year a meeting of Master Masons was held at the residence of Brother William W. Goodale at Papakou, when it was resolved to petition the Grand Lodge of California for a dispensation to establish a Masonic lodge at Hilo, Hawaii.

On December 5th the second meeting was held at the same place; the petition was drawn and the name "Kilauea" Lodge selected.

The brethren taking part in the preliminary organization were: Warren Goodale, Robert Moore, Wm. W. Goodale, John T. Moir, Harold V. Patton, O. B. Braddick, Robert B. Williams, James Webster, Wm. Bohm, Oscar J. Davis, Lewis F. Turner and Elmer E. Richards.

Of these brethren, nine were from Hawaiian Lodge, which had also furnished much of the material in organizing Pacific Lodge in 1895.

On February 23d, 1897, the third meeting was held at the home of Brother Goodale, and the dispensation presented, and on February 27th, Kilauea Lodge held its first meeting under dispensation.

Under date of October 15, 1897, a charter was granted and "Kilauea" Lodge was placed on the Grand Lodge roll as number 330.

The first meeting under its charter was held February 18, 1898, when its first regular officers were elected as follows: Robert Moore, W. M.; R. B. Williams, S. W.; E. E. Richards, J. W.; W. W. Goodale, Treasurer; H. C. Austin, Secretary; E. Thrum, S. D.; James Webster, J. D.; A. C. Steel
